

The Child Study Team is a group designed to provide assistance to teachers and parents in working with the children in our school.

The team includes a building administrator, your child's teacher(s), and a special education teacher who work together to solve problems. The school psychologist, counselor, speech therapist or other support staff, may participate as well.

The following staff members may answer questions about the child study committee in your child's school:

CHILD STUDY

WHAT YOU CAN EXPECT NOW THAT YOUR CHILD HAS
REFERRED TO THE CHILD
STUDY
COMMITTEE

Your child has been referred to the child study committee because of concerns about his or her academic performance, achievement, behavior, or social functioning. Referrals can be made by any person having an educational interest in your child. This might include you as the parent, your child's teacher, or other support staff within the school.

As a problem solving group, the child study committee will:

- 1. analyze problems negatively affecting your child's school performance by reviewing existing information including standardized testing, informal classroom assessments, work samples, behavior plans/charts, teacher reports, and parent observations
- 2. generate possible solutions for the identified problems
- 3. create a plan to meet the needs of your child
- 4. assist in implementing the plan
- 5. establish a method to monitor the success of the interventions
- 6. review your child's progress and make adjustments in the plan or referrals as needed

At any follow-up meetings, the team may:

- 1. make adjustments in the existing plan
- 2. redefine the problem
- 3. develop a new plan with an appropriate method of evaluation of the plan
- 4. involve community based supports that provide additional assistance
- 5. make referrals to other programs or services
